"Lloyd's and the IICF do great work through their work in the community that has a hugely positive impact on society, and we should all take pride in what we achieve and the impact it has, with one caveat: that we must always strive to do more". John Neal, CEO, Lloyd's speaking at 2019 Gala Dinner

About The Insurance Industry Charitable Foundation

We believe the Industry can be a force for social good.

IICF improves the lives of vulnerable and disadvantaged people by bringing the industry together in grants, volunteering and leadership. By doing so, we create new ways for employees to make a difference, help insurance companies access and develop diverse talent, and collectively build a more socially responsible industry. IICF has contributed more than £4.2m in community grants globally and we've helped change the lives of more than 5,000 people in England and Scotland through grants to charities advancing social mobility.
